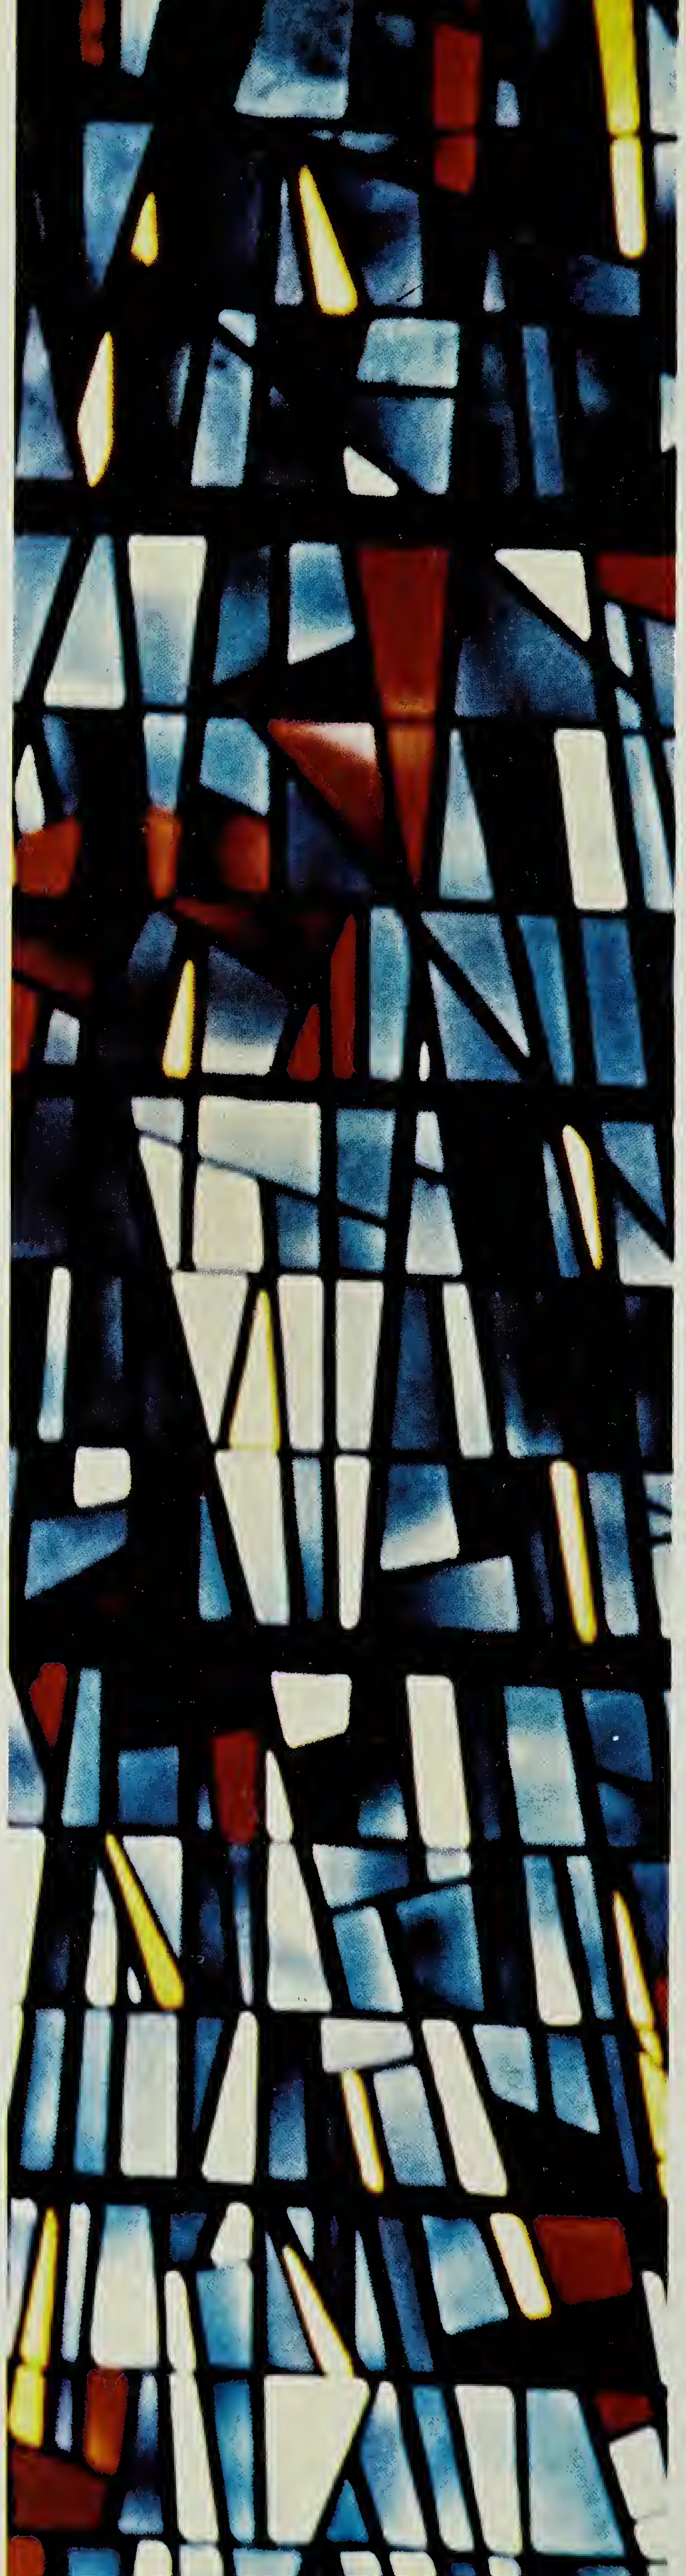
Purchase, New York



TOWER 1966

I am being driven forward
Into an unknown land.
The pass grows steeper,
The air colder and sharper.
A wind from my unknown goal
Stirs the strings
Of expectation.

Introduction

In the beginning, our prospects are vast — our horizons, unlimited. We feel the imminent presence of a hidden goal. Who can tell how many times the strings of expectation will be stirred in the course of four years?

These years are short and they are long. For a long time we wind our way through a maze of formalities, looking always for a pattern. For a short time that is too short we live amidst a myriad of impressions and we revel in them. Our experience is a kaleidoscope of people and things. With each turn new elements emerge; with each turn we see new visions and we seek new ways to attain the zenith.

But visions sometimes can be clouded. These times are times when visions are inexplicably destroyed and horizons seem to narrow for no reason. We feel that the best of all possible worlds is far beyond our reach.

Still, we are being driven forward and ultimately there is joy in our motion. In a small world we gravitate for four very short and very long years — into a larger world we move and somehow, we have become more than what we were.

EXIT

Dedication

Memories of Manhattanville are, for the most part, memories of people. Many people make the years good, a few make them outstanding.

Among all these people there is a group that we acknowledge formally as a whole but that we really see as a union of vastly different individuals. To the freshman this group is a collective deity; to the junior, a curiosity. The sophomore envisions the group as one pole of a necessary I—Thou relationship. The senior realizes at last that this group, The Faculty, means people.

These people are educators who are more than that. They are men and women who have withstood our ennui and encouraged our brilliance; they have chided our procrastination and responded to our impatience. They are, again, and foremost, people who have been our mentors and our friends.

The Class of 1966 dedicates this yearbook to the Manhattanville Faculty, who have helped to make four years a full and unique experience.

For they are the moments when something new has entered into us, something unknown; . . .

We cannot say who has come, perhaps we shall never know,

but many signs indicate that the future

enters into us in this way.

Three things, tiny, fugitive:

a song, a sunbeam, a glance . . .

So, at first, I thought they had entered lost in me.

On the contrary they took possession of me, and bore me away.
